Sapna – A little stammering angel

In the under-privileged community of Nawab Khan Burriro, district Jacobabad, lives a little girl named Sapna. She is the daughter of Rasool Bux Burirro, a truck driver by profession.

Due to her stammering tongue, this five year old faced difficulty in conveying her message and corresponding with the children of her age. Hence, she was barely able to make friends. However, since enrollment in OSDI's built Temporary Learning center (TLC), life has turned the other way round for her.

Under the guidance of her class teacher Sapna has not only improved her speaking skills but has also become a regular student at school. Her innocent and friendly nature has made Sapna a favorite of her classmates.

Much to amazement this bright child of primary section has learned 52 alphabets of Sindhi language by heart. She can even relate each alphabet to a thing such as "A for Apple, B for Banana, etc". Life for Sapna is changing gradually along with the support of her class teacher who is making efforts on improving her speaking skills through speech therapy.

The parents of Sapna are thankful to OSDI for opening up the TLC and hiring a supportive teacher.
